

London & Middlesex Marriage Registers - Pre-1837 & their Online Availability

by Cliff Webb

Pre-1837 marriages can be difficult events to find for the genealogist. The tradition was (and is) that the marriage took place in the parish of residence of the bride. The law (after 1754) stated that one of the parties had to be resident in the parish where the wedding was to take place. Such residency, however, seems often to have been of very short duration, and merely a ruse to secure marriage in the church desired for whatever reason.

Enormous progress has been made in indexing these records, and, latterly in making such indexes available online.

The most important general index is Boyd's Marriage Index. Compiled by Percival Boyd and many co-workers mainly in the 1920s and 1930s it contains some 7,000,000 marriages in total for the period 1538-1837 from all over England. The section for London and Middlesex is quite good in coverage, though naturally there are plenty of gaps. The original typescript is at the Society of Genealogists, London and there are filmed copies at the Guildhall Library, and in the great LDS library in Salt Lake City. It is available online at British Origins (www.originsnetwork.com/) pay per view site. I have made some considerable additions to the Boyd coverage also available on British Origins and this is a continuing task. The 'Boyd' coverage per the list below is, therefore, one including the new material – this will not be found in the hard copy nor the filmed copies mentioned above.

The second major index is the Pallott Index. The original paper slips which constitute this index remain the property of The Institute of Heraldic and Genealogical Studies, Canterbury. Again, it contains several million marriages principally from the period 1780-1837 and it has exceptionally fine coverage for the City of London area for this period. This index was digitised by Ancestry.com and is available on their pay per view website (www.ancestry.co.uk). Unfortunately, the digitisation was carried out extremely poorly.

A large proportion of the original slips (perhaps 20%) were not copied at all – some common surnames Hill and Watson, for example, are not present in the groom's sequence at all. This is mitigated as there were sequences for both grooms and bride, so only perhaps 4% of entries are totally missing – however the grooms name will need to be tried successively in both the groom and the bride fields to discover the 16% balance. Furthermore, the paper slips were transcribed by people with no knowledge of English, and no checking appears to have been done. There are thus umpteen people apparently surnamed 'Esq' or 'Rev' and so indexed! They are therefore undiscoverable.

Periods/parishes only covered by Pallott, therefore, are not fully available and efforts will be made to copy those periods properly into other indexes.

The third source is the International Genealogical Index (IGI) with which everyone is familiar (www.familysearch.org/). It has good coverage of the City (though much less comprehensive than for baptisms) but for Middlesex mainly only repeats material in Boyd's Index. Its great advantage is, of course, that it is freely available without subscription or fees.

London Metropolitan Archives have entered into an agreement with Ancestry.com to digitise the original registers. The first results of this agreement have already appeared (though do not include marriages yet). However, accuracy still remains an issue.

There are two other main pay per view websites FindMyPast (www.findmypast.com/) which has no unique London marriage material and The Genealogist at (www.thegenealogist.co.uk/) who have some items from their digitisation of the nonconformist records at the National Archives of which by far the most important are the Fleet Registers to 1754 and Quaker material.

Because of the ongoing work, this Research Aid will be updated on the WSFHS website whenever possible.
